Pattern of Behavior

Career?

(TW: Mentions of his old penname for search engine purposes. Discussions of mental health issues. Discussions of the dog and

Milo loves the outdoor, but that's beside the point. The real issue is the experience he claims to have, the way he presents himself as someone with a depth of expertise that doesn't line up with what we've actually seen. At this stage, Milo's pattern of behavior is hard to ignore: he leans on his embellished stories as a kind of credibility shortcut, a way to legitimize whatever larger point he's trying to make. It's less about his genuine enjoyment of being active and more about how he repeatedly uses these narratives to bolster his authority in situations where that authority is questionable

To set the stage (2-03-2025):

up to do things like self publish a book though...? Nobody else can just magically afford to do it either?

I literally receive assistance from the state because I can't work a job due to disability. Don't assume my situation. This is also a book with a very large audience who has been waiting 3 years.

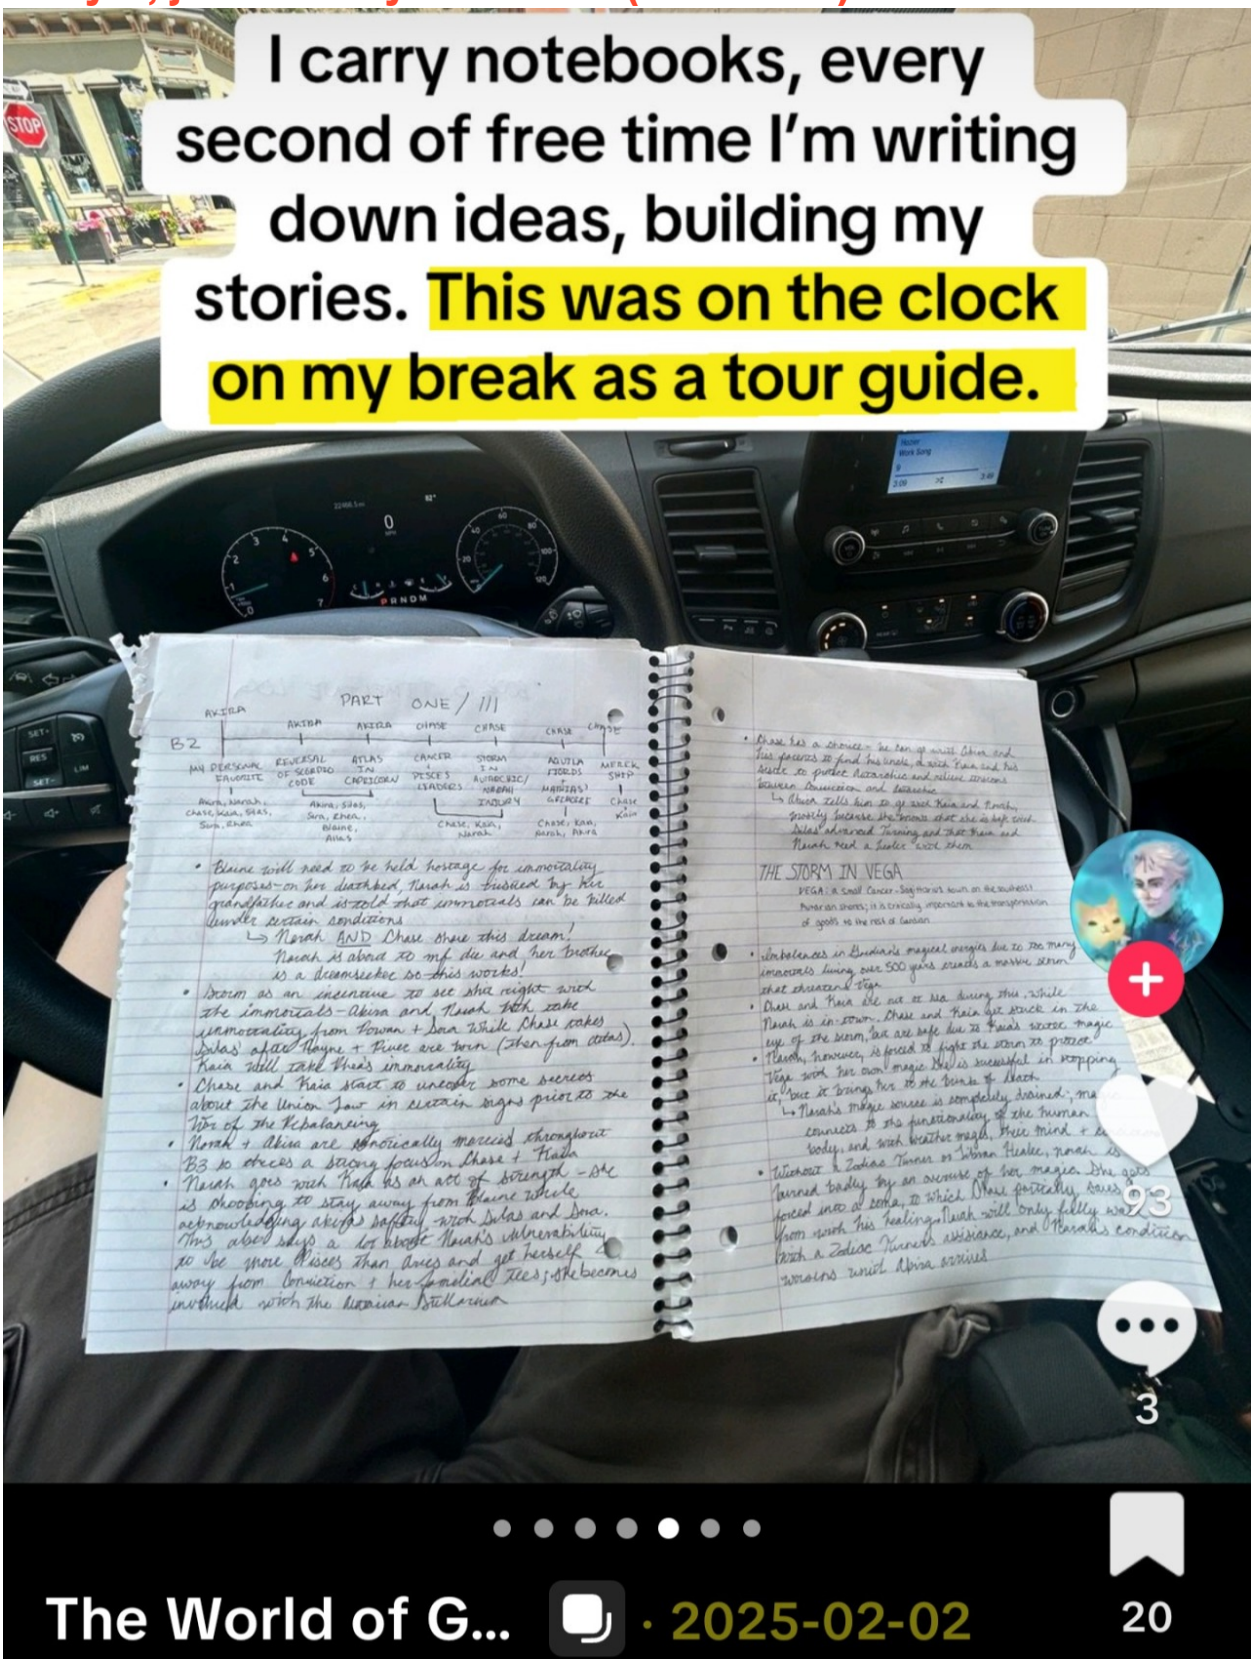
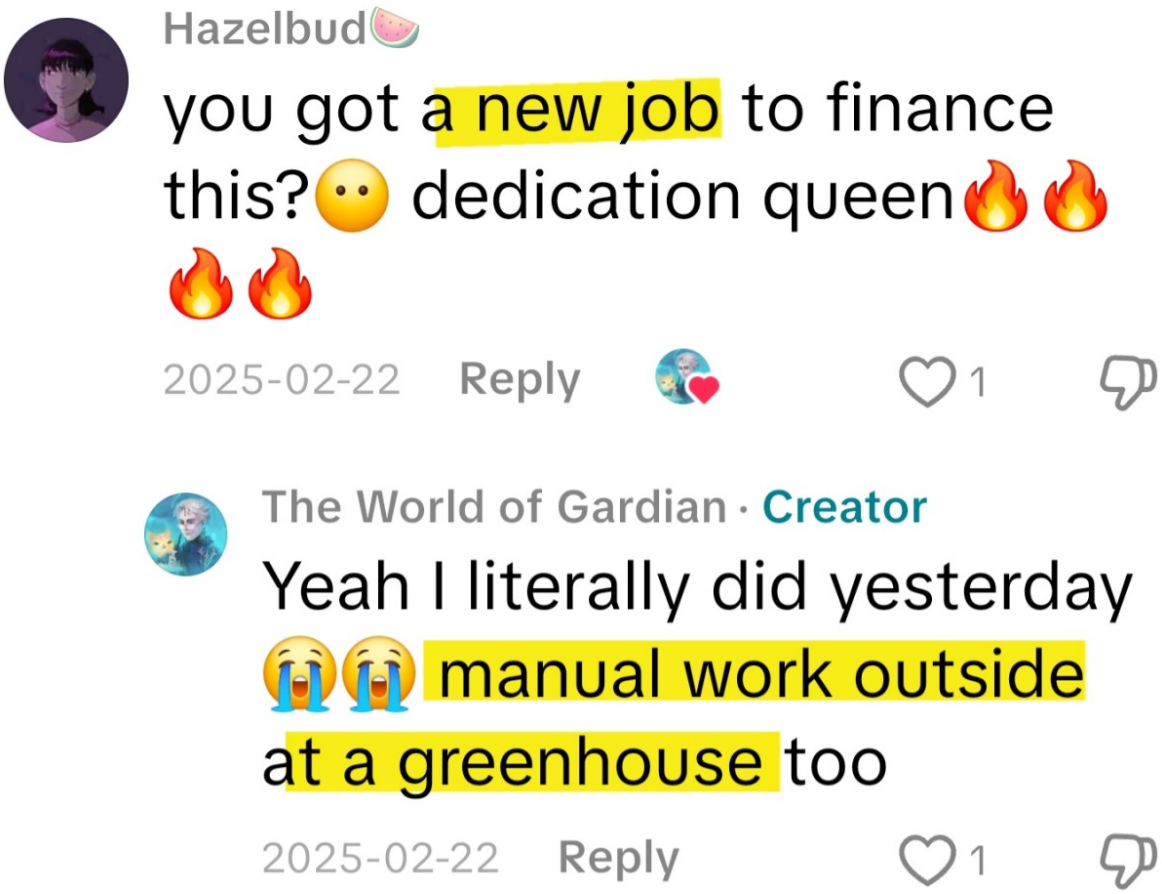
But yet, just the day before on (2-02-2025) deleted vid:



Then, later on, in the same month (2-22-25):



Okay, but below he said he has 10 years of experience in the publishing industry and has been referring to himself as a professional author since he had his parents publish "Zodiac Turner: The Five Trials" in 2017.
I've found evidence of him calling himself a professional author while not only selling editing AND writing services, but tarot card readings as far back as 2018, 2020. But these are the more recent places: (here for the bio, 2023), (here trello account, 2020)

He also claimed to be an ecology educator, Alaskan boat deckhand, boat and mountain tour guide in these 2025 TikToks: (here, here) and (here).

And once more, here's the "High Disturbance" picture I used in one of my previous posts.

> Forestry is a passion of mine—one that appears in the very first chapter of The Age of Scorpius: Conviction Woods is a cursed temperate rainforest resembling Tongass National Forest, the largest cold rainforest in the world at nearly 17 million acres (National Forest Foundation, n.d.). I started my journey as a naturalist three years ago when I began guiding van and boat tours in Colorado and Alaska.[1] While advancing through a degree in restoration ecology, I volunteered, worked, and studied in the Tongass, Roosevelt, and Arapahoe National Forests. Most recently, I toured guests out of Denver for sightseeing and hiking in Rocky Mountain National Park.

Scholars, let us go back and check this timeline again because his time frame includes the ages of 18/19 to 21. I won't include 22, simply because he spent nearly all of 2025 on TikTok promoting his book.

The ambiguous use of "worked" and "studied" are the hallmarks of Milo's pattern of behavior. It's only used there to lead you to the conclusion that he was working there for environmental reasons.

But, that's not even true, here was his first ambiguous mention of living and working at Yellowstone National Park(YNS), (here, 6-15-2022). Yet, once again, he later slipped up and said:

I was wondering how you got the job working at Yellowstone? I've applied to some of the nps positions in the past but I never hear back from them :(

I actually work for a hospitality company! I don't want to give the company name, there's numerous, but the NPS is not the only employer in the Parks

Going back further in 2023, at the age of 20, he claimed to have these jobs in Skagway, Alaska. I added in the college images because it shows you that he wasn't in college at the time (here).

But fact check:
In Skagway, generally, to be a tour guide you need:

Essential qualifications:

- Current First Aid and CPR certification
- Clean driving record and ability to drive
- Wilderness First Responder or EMT/W-EMT training.
- Fluency in English
- 21+ years old by the first date of employment

Desirable qualifications:

- Mountaineering experience
- Kayak and/or canoe guiding experience
- Cold Water Rescue Training
- Bilingual
- Trailer Towing Experience

Again, he was 20. I looked into several companies' websites located where in Skagway. The minimum age across all of these agencies was 21. In other locations, across Alaska, they still required you to be atleast 21 years old or older in order be a licensed tour guide.

Since I've hit my ten picture limit, we'll get into his other claims of being a naturalist, deckhand, and boat captain in my next post. See you there, friends!
